

PARK-EXTENSION'S AND CANADA'S HONEST POLITICIAN PASSES AWAY Marcel Prud'homme, was there for everyone!

(PXN) Former senator and longtime Quebec MP Marcel Prud'homme has died at the age of 82. The usher of the black rod of the Senate, J. Greg Peters, confirmed his death on Wednesday, January 25th.

Prud'homme's 45 years in federal politics began in 1964 when he was elected as a Liberal MP in the Montreal-area riding of Saint-Denis.

He was re-elected eight times in his riding of Saint-Denis that comprises the Park-Extension district. Even in 1984, he managed to keep his seat despite the "Blue Wave" of the Mulroney Conservative party.

Over his years in government Prud'homme became known as a straighttalker and an ardent defender of the Palestinian cause.

His views of The Palestinian crisis, were a hurdle for his political career. Even though he had all the qualifications to become Minister, he only served as a parliamentary secretary on several occasions in 1970.

In 1993 he was named to The Senate as an independent Senator by then Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

Throughout his political career he served with dignity and honesty his riding and all his constituents, no matter their race, colour, age or gender. His funeral is scheduled for February 4th.

Hockey tradition alive in Park Extension with Annual Atom Pee Wee Tournament

(PXN) If hockey is still a popular young people's sport today in Park Extension, the Park Extension Youth Organization's annual Atom Pee Wee Tournament probably deserves a good deal of the credit.

While it's long been known that hockey among the younger set underwent a critical reduction of support in Park Ex over the past few decades, as other sports like soccer and cricket grew and hockey gear became costly, PEYO has kept the hockey flame alive with its regionally popular once-a-year hockey event.

Deros credits PEYO

"Over the years hockey became less and less important," said local city councillor Mary Deros who did the honours dropping the ceremonial first puck before one of the opening matches at the Howie Morenz Arena on Querbes Ave. on Saturday Jan. 21.

"But thanks to the efforts of PEYO, with free ice skate time, they are continuing to develop new skaters," she continued. "The result is that more and more children are joining now and taking up hockey. It's just a question of finding more ice time for them."

Officials attend CGLP/HSQ reception at Centre Saint-Roch

Community groups say thanks to their elected representatives

(PXN) The Corporation de Gestion des Loisirs du Parc (CGLP) and Himalaya Seniors of Quebec (HSQ) held a jointly-organized special cocktail gathering on Jan. 20 at the Centre Saint-Roch to celebrate New Year 2017 and to thank the leading elected officials from the Park Extension area.

Starting the New Year right

The guest list included law enforcement officers from Station 33 of the Montreal Police Department, as well as representatives of Papineau MP and Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, Outremont MP and NDP leader Thomas Mulcair, Laurier-Dorion MNA Gerry Sklavounos.

"Happy New Year to all, with health and happiness being most important," said Park Extension city councillor Mary Deros. "May we all enjoy our district to the maximum together as one happy family."

To health and happiness

"It's very nice to see everyone here again this year," said George Tsantrizos, political assistant to Laurier-Dorion MNA Gerry Sklavounos. "I note that there are more and more people coming this event every year. This tells me that the relationships between those coming here are becoming more and more fruitful.

"I wish you all a wonderful year full of health because that's the most important thing," Tsantrizos added. "Let's all continue in this new year to stay smiling and productive."

HSQ president thanks publisher

Another invitee, George S. Guzmas, co-founder and editor of Nouvelles Parc Extension News, which is one of several publications under the umbrella of Newsfirst Multimedia, was caught up in a traffic jam and was unable to attend in person, although he spoke briefly to the guests over a cellular speakerphone.

"We really want to thank George as one of the key players in the area through his newspaper," said Himalaya Seniors president Vathany Srikandarajah. "He provides value and we thank him very much for it."

The guest list included officers from Station 33 of the Montreal Police Department, as well as representatives of Papineau MP and Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, Outremont MP and NDP leader Thomas Mulcair, Laurier-Dorion MNA Gerry Sklavounos.

Longtime NPEN journalist Martin C. Barry gave a short talk about the newspaper's contributions to the Park Extension community and the staff's determination to continue serving area residents.

Park Ex has its own paper

"It's not every community that has the benefit of having its own community newspaper, but Park Extension is fortunate to have Nouvelles Parc Extension News," he said. "I consider it a privilege to be able to write for it and for you. We certainly do our best to give you here in Park Extension everything we can."

Although the event was billed as a "cocktail" party, Himalaya Seniors general-secretary Nizam Uddin admitted that he forgot to bring the temporary liquor permit. A few bottles of wine that he brought along had to stay uncorked and will no doubt go to good use at a future CGLP/HSQ gathering.PEYO keeping

Among those presented by the HSQ with certificates honoring them for contributions to Park Extension were the Centre Haitien d'Animation et d'intervention Sociale Parc-Extension.

Halleluyah!

C'est enfin le retour en classe!

Vous devez vous demander de quelle classe il s'agit puisque je viens de fêter mon 75ième anniversaire. Je m'explique :

Durant les saisons d'automne, d'hiver et de printemps, une jeune et jolie instructrice du YMCA vient dans notre immeuble pour encourager les croulants que nous sommes à faire de petits exercices de mise en forme, empêcher, en quelque sorte, nos vieux muscles rouillés de tomber en panne.

Le tout se déroule dans la bonne humeur et permet aux plus timides des locataires de raconter leur vie aux autres. Bon!

En été, notre instructrice prend des vacances, alors j'ai voulu prendre de l'avance en m'inscrivant dans un gymnase

J'ai donc fait mes réservations auprès de Samantha, une pulpeuse blonde de 26 ans instructrice anaérobique 101. Comme l'enthousiasme est contagieux, ma fille qui veille si bien sur ma santé m'a vivement encouragé dans ma décision, et a insisté pour que je tienne un journal de l'aventure.

LUNDI

Ma journée débute à six heures du matin. Dur, dur, de sortir du lit, mais le souvenir de Samantha me... redresse. O! récompense, Samantha m'attend sourire aux lèvres sur ses dents éclatantes et ses yeux étincelants. Mutine, elle me bécote les joues et m'emmène visiter les différents appareils, puis m'installe à faire des tractions. Ça fait une bonne soixantaine d'années que j'ai cessé d'en faire et je ne me rappelais pas que c'était si douloureux. Mais Samantha ne me quitte pas des yeux, ce qui déclenche sur ma face un sourire qui ressemble un peu à une grimace d'hvène.

Qu'importe, je sens que ça va être une semaine fantastique!

MARDI

Après avoir vidé ma cafetière, j'ai réussi à extirper du lit mon corps endolori et à me traîner vers la porte. À peine rendu, Samantha m'a fait coucher sur le dos et m'arque bouter sous des barres métalliques où elle accumule des poids. Mais quand je réussis à soulever tout ca, imaginez son sourire éclatant, je pouvais voir ses dents étinceler en mon honneur. Je ne sais pas si c'est ma joie qui me faisait flageoler des jambes, mais je me sentais le roi du monde. Je commençais mon règne!

MERCREDI

27,

đ

La seule manière qui me reste pour me brosser les dents est désormais de presser le dentifrice sur une débarbouillette et de la mâchouiller laborieusement. Je ne peux plus me pencher pour attacher mes lacets et mes genoux se verrouillent sans que je le leur demande. Tout mon corps est raqué. J'arrive à conduire mais j'aurais bien besoin de quelqu'un pour tourner le volant ou peser sur les freins. Samantha perd un peu patience avec moi, car mes cris de douleur dérangent les autres participants, et sa voix est particulièrement pointue ce matin, surtout quand elle me gronde. Elle me fait emprunter les escaliers à toute vitesse. Quelle idée! Alors pourquoi avons nous inventé l'ascenseur? Mon cœur bat la chamade même quand j'arrête, et je ne sais pas ce qui me fait plus mal à la poitrine : Est-ce mes efforts ou ses engueulades? Pardon : elle appelle ça de la "motivation".personnellement, j'ai une toute autre idée de la motivation!

IEUDI

Samantha n'était pas contente ce matin. Pendant qu'elle me reprochait mon petit retard de quarante cinq minutes, il m'a semblé que ses canines avaient poussé draculesquement. C'était pourtant pas facile de lui dire que je n'arrivais pas à tirer la porte du gymnase. Elle me prit par la main et m'entraîna vers ses instruments de torture. À sa première distraction, j'enfilai un couloir et me cachais dans les toilette d'où il fallut deux autres salauds de moniteurs pour m'extirper de force. Pour me punir, Samantha m'installa sur l'équipement de canotage et m'engagea à ramer. Je pense que c'est là que le sportif en moi a finit par se noyer.

VENDREDI

Je hais cette salope de Samantha avec ses exhortations nasillardes, plus que Caen n'haït Abel, plus que Hitler n'haït les Juifs, plus que ma copine n'haït les oeufs miroirs glaireux, plus que les vierges au paradis d'Allah n'haïssent les hordes de terroristes venues les réclamer comme récompense. D'ailleurs, je dois vous avouer qu'on a découvert récemment qu'une erreur s'était glissée dans les écritures, et qu'il s'agissait, en fait, d'une vierge… de 72 ans. D'où le désintérêt soudain pour le sacrifice rituel. Ce soir, mes copains sont venus pour m'emmener de force au restaurant en me soutenant sous les bras. S'il y avait une seule partie de mon corps que je pouvais encore bouger sans une douleur insoutenable, je la battrais avec! Je hais cette stupide maigrichonne, platinée, anémique, anaérobique et anorexique, bique! Quant à ma fille chérie, j'espère que l'an prochain elle m'offrira quelque chose de plus drôle, comme par exemple un traitement de canal ou une cystoscopie, et moi, je persiste à penser que si le bon Dieu voulait vraiment que je fasse des tractions, il aurait parsemé le sol de diamants bruts!

Trudeau's challenges: Trump, taxes and energy

Canada's tax and energy advantages are coming to a sudden end, and we should expect businesses will move more investment to the U.S.

When Justin Trudeau shuffled his federal cabinet last week, it signaled he's taking the next United States president seriously. Finding the right mix of people to work with White House officials is important. But government policies also matter. Our prime minister will need to do more to keep Canada competitive and protect Canadian jobs.

Donald Trump is ready to upend U.S. policy on everything from trade to defence treaties to immigration. But the president-elect's domestic proposals on taxes and energy are Canada's greater challenges.

The Trump administration intends to move quickly to cut the business tax rate from 35 to 15 per cent. Add the four per cent average corporate tax applied by state and local governments and the new U.S. tax rate could soon effectively be a cool 19 per cent, about eight points lower than Canada's 27 per cent average when federal and provincial rates are combined.

Our country's tax advantage is coming to a sudden end. As a result, we should expect businesses will invest more in the United States and less in Canada, where higher costs exist.

This brings us to energy. Trudeau wants all provinces to put a price on carbon, directly with a carbon tax or indirectly with cap-and-trade regulations. If the provinces don't, Trudeau will impose a carbon tax. The impact of either strategy is the same: more expensive for Canadians to get around, heat their homes and keep the lights on. Pricing carbon will increase the cost of almost everything, including food.

A typical Canadian family will likely pay more than $1,200 a year in new energy taxes by 2022 and twice that if Ottawa decides to apply its new tax aggressively.

Carbon pricing isn't the only way Trudeau's policies will raise electricity rates. His order to provincial governments to shutter coal-fired stations by 2030 will eliminate a source of cheap and reliable power from Canada's energy mix. Here's what that means for one small province: New Brunswick has a single coal-burning power plant and NB Power officials have said closing it would increase provincial electricity rates by a staggering 38 per cent.

Meanwhile, U.S. ratepayers face no carbon tax. And American energy costs will likely fall as Trump repeals President Barack Obama's executive orders restricting the extraction and use of fossil fuels.

What's Ottawa's response to all this?

Trudeau says Canada could win if the incoming president rejects plans to make U.S. energy more expensive. He told a Calgary business audience last month. "We know that this is the way the world is going and if the United States wants to take a step back from it, quite frankly, I think we should look at that as an extraordinary opportunity for Canada and for Canadians."

It's a brave face - but does it make sense?

Trump's energy policies twinned with deep tax cuts will reduce Canada's competitiveness.

Canadian policy-makers, and the prime minister, don't have to like this change and may privately curse it. But our federal and provincial governments can't pretend Trump's policy agenda won't have any impact on the economy when Canadian jobs are at risk.

Canada's energy sector is already concerned that government policy will soon put our country at a competitive disadvantage, and that investment and jobs will move to the U.S.

In Ontario, some businesses are already eyeing nearby U.S. states with more affordable energy prices. Ontario electricity prices have skyrocketed thanks to costly provincial regulations. Carbon pricing means bills for natural gas, gasoline and diesel are going up next. The Coalition of Concerned Manufacturers of Ontario, a group of small- and medium-sized businesses, has raised the alarm and is urging the government to reverse course or risk job losses.

Canada's long-term growth depends on its businesses remaining competitive. Affordable energy is part of the mix, along with reasonable tax rates. Likewise, the prosperity of Canadian families is impacted by the price of home heating fuels, power and gas. Dramatic price increases leave households poorer, while inexpensive energy would mean households have more income for other things.

With Canadian energy prices set to increase relative to U.S. prices, there will soon be an additional cost to Canada's carbon policy. That price is less investment and lost jobs. Lower U.S. taxes will only compound the problem.

Canadian workers and businesses can't afford such a shift.

The Trudeau government's next move should be to overhaul its carbon pricing plan to account for the policy shift south of the border. Canada needs a strategy that doesn't penalize businesses and ordinary Canadians.

Borough to present local Transport Plan at public meeting

Park Exers invited to attend at 405 Ogilvy on Feb. 28

(PXN) The Borough of Villeray/St-Michel/ Parc Extension will be holding a public forum on Feb. 28 during which it will be presenting a detailed study of traffic and public transit and possible solutions to related problems.

Residents are invited to take part and ask questions, provide suggestions and make recommendations before a final version of the Local Transport Plan is made.

Final stage

"This is the last public consultation stage before the final tabling of the Local Transport Plan that will allow us to plan the development of transport for the next 20 years and to adapt them to the needs of the population," says Borough Mayor Anie Samson.

"This is a chance for Park Extension residents to hear the results of the study and also to give any additional comments they may wish to share with the professional people who did the study," says Park Extension city councillor Mary Deros.

"This is an opportunity for them to come and listen to what the studies say and understand," she adds. "Afterwards we will take all the comments and see what adjustments we have to make to make things easier for everybody." The forum will be taking place on Feb. 28 at 7 pm (doors open at 6:30 pm) in the council chamber (second floor) at VSP borough headquarters (405 Ogilvy Ave.) Registration for the forum can be completed online at: realisonsmtl. ca/vsp.

Participate online

Those who are unable to attend the forum in person can also complete a survey online up to March 14 at the same web site. The site provides access to all the available information on the Local Transit Plan. By registering, citizens can receive news on the project and download documents concerning transport issues in the borough, along with the text for the study of the Local Transport Plan.

The Local Transit Plan will be completed by this spring when a final version of it will be presented by the borough. The plan will contain local orientations from a larger transport plan created by the City of Montreal, as set out in 2008. That plan aims to reduce the public's dependence on automobile transport by encouraging use of public transit, as well as walking and bicycling.

ACADEMIC PERSEVERANCE WHEN AWARENESS RHYMES WITH EDUCATION

School abandonment is an ongoing issue that affects not only the students themselves, but also society in general. Thankfully, many measures have been — and continue to be — put in place to collectively fight this crisis. Awareness initiatives, aimed at both schools and households, are helping young people succeed and build a brilliant future.

AT SCHOOL

Teachers and other workers who support youths throughout their academic careers can pinpoint the problems that some students are having. They can also help students set reasonable goals, and, most importantly, give them the means to reach them. Along with tutoring, mentoring, and homework services, dropout awareness programs have been implemented in many North American schools in an effort to better understand the situation and make way for change.

AT HOME

Fighting school abandonment starts in the household. Parents play a vital role when it comes to helping young people persevere and pursue their studies. Being informed about what's at stake equips parents to discuss the negative outcomes related to dropping out of school with their children. With daily encouragement and continued support, students feel valued and ready to take on the challenge of finishing school.

STM'S RE-ROUTED 179 DE L'ACADIE TO BE RESTORED AS BEFORE

(PXN) Park Extension city councillor Mary Deros says a recent change on the STM's 179 De l'Acadie bus route that impacted some Park Extension transit users on Jarry St. has been reversed and service will soon be back to the way it was before.

Services wasn't restored

"One of the problems was that when there was some road work being done on Champagneur the bus was being rerouted to Querbes and the 179 just continued on l'Acadie," she told Nouvelles Parc Extension News. "When the roadwork finished, the 80 came back but the 179 had not come back."

According to Deros, a number of residents of Park Extension who were put out by the change called the Société de Transport de Montréal to complain. She also got into the act, sending messages to the STM administration, as well as to elected officials sitting on the STM board of directors "and I was told they would look into it, but there was no answer," Deros said.

Bus had no room to turn

"Before the Christmas holidays I called up again and I was told the reason why it wasn't coming back was because when the bus was on its regular route coming back from Champagneur and turning westward on Jarry, the cars were parked too close to the corner and the bus was not able to make a turn securely. They were wasting time maneuvering back and forth, or sometimes just waiting for the light to change again, in order for them to try to make a safe left turn.

"Unfortunately, that information was not given to me in the past and it wasn't given to our borough director in the past. And unfortunately it was just before the Christmas holidays. I gave the information to my director to make him aware, and as soon as I got back from holidays I did my followup."

Parking impedes buses

Deros said the problem was resolved with the installation of a no parking sign at the corner in question so that cars don't park there and the bus has more room to maneuvre to turn. Still, she admitted there are problems that continue to prevent the buses from turning properly.

"Even last night I saw there was a car parked there blocking the access," she said. "People have to understand that there are reasons why no parking signs are placed in certain areas. It's to help the fluidity of traffic and to give safety to pedestrians and motorists equally. We did the followup and everything is in place. We're now waiting for the STM to reroute the bus back to its original routing. Citizens who have heard about his are happy and I will be happier when I see it done."

Early diagnosis; improved quality of life

Did you know that because of the aging population, it is estimated that around 1.4 million Canadians will suffer from Alzheimer's disease over the next 20 years? Unfortunately, fear of the disease and prejudice against it often prevent affected people from seeking help. Consequently, about half of Canadians wait too long to be diagnosed, not realizing that early diagnosis can greatly improve their quality of life and that of their families.

It is important to consult a doctor when you notice memory loss, difficulty performing daily tasks, or mood or behaviour changes. Contrary to popular belief, these symptoms are not part of the normal aging process. When Alzheimer's disease is diagnosed early, people are able to make their own decisions concerning their health care. The treatment is also more effective when administered in the early stages. Similarly, early diagnosis allows patients to learn more about the disease, to seek support, and plan for the future according to their personal priorities.

The stigma of Alzheimer's is partly to blame for the fact that people are reluctant to ask for help. For that reason, the Alzheimer Society of Canada invites the public to speak openly about the disease during January, Alzheimer Awareness Month. As more attention is given to Alzheimer's the easier it will be to overcome prejudices and correct the misinformation that often circulates about it. To learn more, visit www.alzheimer.ca or www.earlydiagnosis.ca.

Alzheimer: ten signs to watch for

Most people associate Alzheimer's disease with memory loss. However, this condition has several other symptoms, some of which are not as well known. During Alzheimer Awareness Month, take a few minutes to learn about this disease's ten leading symptoms.

1. SUDDEN MOOD CHANGES

Example: being euphoric and then angry for no apparent reason.

- DISORIENTATION
  - Example: getting lost in a shopping mall you're familiar with. DIFFICULTY PERFORMING ROUTINE TASKS
- Example: taking several minutes to tie your shoes.
- SIGNIFICANT DIFFICULTY REMEMBERING PAST 4. EVENTS OR RETAINING NEW FACTS
- Example: forgetting appointments. DECREASED JUDGMENT 5.
- Example: wearing sandals outside during the winter.
- 6. PERSONALITY CHANGE
- Example: feeling in danger. REDUCED INITIATIVE 7.
- Example: isolating yourself from others or no longer participating in leisure activities.
- LOSS OF UNDERSTANDING OF ABSTRACT OR MATH-8. EMATICAL CONCEPTS

Example: no longer understanding what the buttons on a remote control are used for.

9. RANDOM STORAGE OF OBJECTS Example: putting an ornament in the freezer.

10. INAPPROPRIATE USE OF WORDS Example: calling a cushion a cat.

Watch out for these signs. When in doubt, consult a doctor in order to undergo screening for Alzheimer's disease. Remember that the earlier the diagnosis is established, the sooner it will be possible to find the best way of controlling the symptoms. For more details, visit www.alzheimer.ca.

ARGYRIS, Irene

Irene Glezos Argyris, with serenity and courage, left us on January 10, 2017 at the age of 77. Irene was the cherished wife and best friend of Efstathios "Steve" Argyris, with whom she was married since they were teenagers. For nearly 60 years, he was "Stathi," her "Rock," in a sublimely happy partnership. She was the adored mother of Maria Argyris, grandmother of Stephanie Kirolivanos (Sotirios), and great-grandmother of Violet Kirolivanos, the light of her life. Irene was born in Montreal, the daughter of the late Peter Glezos and Mary Evans, brought up by her godparents, the late Loula Glezos and Peter Zerbisias, as sister to the Hon. Dionysia Zerbisias (Martin Bergman). Second of the 19 grandchildren of the late Eirini Zevgolis Glezos, she was much-loved by her 10 aunts and uncles (all now deceased) and the many cousins who formed the original "Glezos Clan." Irene was educated in Montreal, graduating from Concordia and McGill Universities. For 28 years she was a teacher at the PSBGM, as well as the developer of its Hairdressing Program. Her hundreds of students always appreciated her good cheer and sardonic sense of humor. To know Irene was to know love, kindness, generosity, optimism and mischief. She made the most of every day, at home and during her travels.

A consummate family man he surrounded himself with his children and grandchildren at every opportunity with Linda always at his side. He was adored by all of his family including his brother Robert and his wife Shelly and his brother-in-law and sister-in- law Sue and Fred Lipes. Writer/director/producer M. Night Shyamalan returns to the captivating grip of The Sixth Sense, Unbreakable and Signs with Split, an original thriller that delves into the mysterious recesses of one man's fractured, gifted mind. Following last year's breakout hit The Visit, Shyamalan reunites with producer Jason Blum (The Purge and Insidious series, The Gift) for the film. While the mental divisions of those with dissociative identity disorder have long fascinated and eluded science, it is believed that some can also manifest unique physical attributes for each personality, a cognitive and physiological prism within a single being.

The second responded, "Yes, but for that you would need real teeth.

My father's secretary was visibly distraught one morning when she arrived at the office and explained that her children's parrot had escaped from his cage and flown out an open window. Of all the dangers the tame bird would face outdoors alone, she seemed most concerned about what would happen if the bird started talking.

Confused, my father asked what the parrot could say. "Well," she explained, "he mostly says, 'Here, kitty, kitty, kitty.'"

What will happen to my property if I don't make a will?

If you don't have a will, the civil code provides different applications of the law, depending on your situation. For example, if you are married and have children, 1/3 of your property will go to your spouse and 2/3 of that property will go to your children in equal shares. If you wish to change what the law has already provided make sure to make a notarized will.
